FMC UPDATE: THEATER

The performing arts are well-represented at Fort Mason. Groups present or produce theater pieces or dance festivals, teach performance skills to children or adults, involve the audience directly or indirectly. Some focus on the traditional, some the avant-garde, some the humorous or the profound. Resident groups include Magic Theatre, Life on the Water, City Celebration, Feedback Productions (Make-A-Circus and Tale Spinners), Performing Arts Workshop, SF Bay Area Dance Coalition, SF Folk Music Center, Young Performers Theatre, and Blue Bear School of Music. Others teach classes in activity space here (listed inside under Performing Arts). This month, we focus on a few—in future issues, there will be more.

Young Performers Theatre presents a special offering, Puzzles 'N Potpourri, with only young actors in the cast. A product of YPT's improvisational workshops, this mixed-media show combines stage action with interactive video, special lighting and sound effects, and audience participation. Actors will talk to themselves and others via television; television will carry on dialogues with the actors on stage. At several points, the audience will make critical decisions regarding the direction of the stage action. These elements, fully orchestrated for synthesizer, and a cast of talented and enthusiastic young veterans of YPT productions, make this an innovative and exciting show that both children and adults can enjoy.

Puzzles 'N Potpourri takes place in a summer theme camp for kids—a "mystery" camp. But it turns out to be a fraud—no Sherlock Holmes adventures are forthcoming from the management. The youngsters manage to get themselves into some fine pickles anyway, encountering an extraterrestrial, ghosts, and all kinds of things that go bump in the night. Members of the audience get to be actors, amateur sleuths, and villains, with a chance to win prizes for guessing the true culprits. The show is perfect for Halloween, delicious for kids, and designed as well for the adult palate. For schedule and ticket information, see listing inside under Sunday, November 1, or call 346-5550.

YPT was founded in 1983 by Matilda and Richard Kunin as a living memorial to their son, Anthony Manning Kunin, who was killed in an accident in 1980. Ms. Kunin, whose background is in the arts, performance skills and producing, believes that introduction to the theater arts and the technical skills of the theater help to develop vitally aware, resourceful and fulfilled children who will be more productive as adults because of this experience. She believes that such training allows for individual creative output as well as self-discipline, cooperation and basic communication skills. Ticket prices for YPT shows have been kept low so many more children and families are able to attend. In addition, YPT gives many free performances. Young Performers Theatre welcomes all children of the Bay Area to auditions. For information, call 346-5550.

Life on the Water Performance Center presents artists who originate their own work. This month, the fun begins when renowned clown Avner Eisenberg brings his one-man symphony of brilliant buffoonery to town. If you enjoy new vaudeville-style performing, see Avner the Eccentric, October 27 through November 8. Next comes a very special engagement with Misako Watanabe, direct from Japan, performing Kesho (Make Up). Watanabe, a leading comedienne in the Japanese theater, combines elements of Kabuki with modern-day performance art to create an unforgettable theatrical experience. The show is performed in Japanese with supertitles, and runs three nights only, November 12 through 15. There then follows a week of performances by monologuist David Cale, a transplanted Englishman, who blends "ambiguous autobiography and outlandish fiction" in his latest show, The Redcoats. Cale is a master of the multiple-character performance piece, and in this effort he pulls out all the stops. The show runs November 18 through 22. For more information on these events, call the LOTW box office at 776-8999.

The Magic Theatre continues to present the very best in drama by new playwrights. Through November 15, Magic's Northside Theater continues its world premiere of Manslaughter, a black comedy that pokes fun at our criminal justice system at the same time it takes a bold look at the moral implications of euthanasia. Then, from November 10 through December 20, the newly-remodeled Southside Theater will host the West Coast premiere of Apocalyptic Butterflies, a funny and inspirational piece dealing with marital crisis. Both plays run Wednesday through Saturday, with showtimes at 8:30pm, and on Sunday, at 2pm and 7:30pm. For more information, call the Magic Theatre box office at 441-8822.

LIVE PERFORMANCE RADIO AT LIFE ON THE WATER

West Coast Weekend, San Francisco's only live performance radio show, has moved to a new home on the San Francisco waterfront. Host Sedge Thomson brings together a diverse selection of guests each Saturday in the Life on the Water theater at Fort Mason Center. Every Saturday from 11am to 1pm you can be in attendance as Thomson presents a wide spectrum of personalities, performances and news about activities for the weekend and the upcoming week.

Thomson strives to create an informal salon, "where local and out-of-town musicians, artists, and authors drop by for talk and a song, before going to their afternoon opening or evening performance." Past highlights have included songwriter Sammy Cahn and actor Ian McKellen, the 30-member Pacific Mozart Ensemble and the popular bluegrass group, The Red Clay Ramblers, the world premiere of a Dorothy Parker short story, the Chrysanthemum Rag Time Band, columnist/novelist Ann Lamott, the Sacred and Profane Chorus, and the Sundogs Cajun Band. The show also regularly features the wide-ranging art criticism of Meredith Tromble, and Urban Geographer Bonnie Loyd, editor of Landscape Magazine, who talks about city sights.

To attend these live broadcasts in the comfort of Life on the Water's 250-seat theater in Building B, you can call 553-2213 for reservations; audience members are also welcome at the door as long as space is available. If you can't attend the live broadcast, tune in to West Coast Weekend, produced by KQED-FM, every Saturday from 11am to 1pm (or on Sundays at 6pm when the program is repeated on tape) at 88.5 FM on the radio dial. To offer guest suggestions or event and activity information, contact Sedge Thomson at 553-2213.
